I’ve been wondering how students manage online exams when they have several deadlines at the same time. Sometimes coursework, assignments, and exam preparation can become difficult to balance, especially when there is very little time available. I’m curious about what strategies people use to stay organized and prepared for an online exam. Do students usually create a study schedule, review notes, or ask classmates for advice? I’ve also seen people mention “Take my online examTake my online exam” when discussing academic support, and I’d like to understand what students actually mean by this. What has worked best for you when preparing for an online exam under time pressure?
