My final semester became very busy with assignments, presentations, and project deadlines, so my GRE preparation fell far behind. As the exam date got closer, I became nervous and even searched pay someone to take GRE exam because I felt I had no time left. After taking a break, I realized that stress was affecting my judgment and that genuine preparation was a better option. Has anyone else faced this kind of pressure and found useful tutoring, practice questions, or study resources? I would appreciate honest advice from students who prepared properly and gained confidence.
