If you are planning to buy a smartphone for your child with built-in parental controls, understanding the Bark Phone cost is important before making a purchase. Bark Phone is designed for children and teenagers, offering smartphone functionality plus parental supervision and online safety features. As of November 2026, Bark offers two smartphone options with different device prices and subscription plans.

Pricing is below:

1. Bark Phone

- Price of the device: USD 360 (one-time fee)

- Starter plan: $29/month.

- More tiered: from $39/month.

- Offers parental controls, location tracing, contact approval and monitoring.

2. Bark Phone Pro

- Price of device: $600 (one time payment).

- Plans on a monthly: from $29 per month.

- Brings improved hardware; more memory, faster, and better cover on the screen.

Please note, the monthly subscription is besides the device. What's more, you can enjoy unlimited calls and texts, mobile data, app management and even more parental control features with every plan.

One important point to keep in mind is that the cost of the Bark Phone goes beyond just the initial device purchase. Parents should also factor in the monthly subscription fees to fully understand the total cost of ownership.

Is Bark Phone worth buying?

Technology is a great tool for any parent trying to keep their kids safe online, and Bark Phone makes the process simple. It's parental controls allow parents to easily manage apps, screen time, contacts, and online behavior that could be damaging. Yet, if you're simply looking for a smartphone and don't want to be limited, you should explore other options. Make sure to compare both styles and consider, which subscription plan actually includes the features you're looking for.
