What to Check Before Buying a TURP Set?

I’m planning to buy a TURP set for urological procedures and I’m trying to understand what I should check before making a decision. There seem to be quite a few options available, so I don’t want to choose only based on the price.

From what I understand, the quality of the telescope, electrodes, working elements, sheath, and other components is important for reliable use. I’d also want to check whether the instruments are durable, compatible with the required equipment, and easy to maintain or sterilize. Clear information about the complete set and what is included would also help avoid unexpected costs.

While comparing a Resectoscopy set and TURP set dealer in india, I think it’s also important to consider the supplier’s experience, product quality, after-sales service, delivery time, and warranty or service support where applicable. Pricing should be transparent, especially if replacement parts or additional accessories are needed later.

I’d also be cautious about choosing an unfamiliar supplier without checking product details, business reputation, and genuine customer feedback.

For those who have purchased or used TURP sets, what factors did you consider most important? Are there any specific questions I should ask a dealer before placing an order?
